

6 CM

Chapter 1 {size 26, bold}

2 CM

Introduction {size 26, bold}

2 CM

1.0 Introduction {size 14, bold}

The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease to employs allowing them to remain connected to their enterprise network by enabling on the go access to different resources. For example, it allows employees to send and receive emails, attend.

From enterprise resources to social media, governmental services and health care, computing paradigm has almost shifted from PC to mobile devices. The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease.

SIZE
12,NORMAL

LATEX : SPACING DOUBLE

MANUAL :
1.5 SPACING

FIRST PAGE NUMBERING
MUST BE CENTERED

1

5 CM

3 CM

3 CM

The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease to employs allowing them to remain connected to their enterprise network by enabling on the go access to different resources. For example, it allows employees to send and receive emails, attend.

1.1 Problem Statement

From enterprise resources to social media, governmental services and health care, computing paradigm has almost shifted from PC to mobile devices. The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease.

The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease to employs allowing them to remain connected to their enterprise network by enabling on the go access to different resources. For example, it allows employees to send and receive emails, attend.

From enterprise resources to social media, governmental services and health care, computing paradigm has almost shifted from PC to mobile devices. The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease.

4.5 CM

3 CM

1.1.1 Era Phase

The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease to employs allowing them to remain connected to their enterprise network by enabling on the go access to different resources. For example, it allows employees to send and receive emails, attend.

From enterprise resources to social media, governmental services and health care, computing paradigm has almost shifted from PC to mobile devices. The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life.

The current hype in the functionality of mobile device and the rise in market penetration of modern smartphones have made both the enterprise and consumers rely on these devices for their daily life. Enterprise are especially heavily deploying these handheld devices in business transactions. Smartphones provide mobility with ease to employs allowing them to remain connected to their enterprise network by enabling on the go access to different resources. For example, it allows employees to send and receive emails, attend.